WHY PARTICIPATE?

Organisations involved in construction projects, contractors, subcontractors, consultants and stakeholders, need simple trust-based digital contracts as effective tools that safeguard their interests, without hampering the construction process. Applying Legal Design to construction contracts means redesigning contract content and processes with a view to developing new solutions more adequate to meet needs and expectations of the industry than technical paper-based contracts.

SARAH FOX (HOST - UK)

Sarah Fox is the founder of 500 Words Ltd. As a lawyer, she has spent 25 years reading, reviewing, negotiating, and advising on construction contracts from 4 to 400 pages. As a speaker and author, she is trying to shake the construction industry out of its inertia on typical contracts - which are a burden and a bore. As an innovator, Sarah introduced a 500-word contract to demonstrate what is possible. Sarah has recently been appointed as COMIT Projects' Head of Digital Contracts to lead a steering group to reimagine how simple digital contracts can help project partners do business, a critical part of the move towards collaborative digital construction.

TESSA MANUELLO (FACILITATOR - CANADA)

Tessa Manuello is the founder of Legal Creatives. In addition to teaching creativity at the law school of the University of Sherbrooke (Canada), she has been helping the legal market to reimagine the legal experience in the digital age, providing engaging, thought-provoking and motivating experiences for legal audiences around the world. In October 2018, she facilitated the world's first Legal Design Sprint in Sweden. In August 2019, she facilitated the World's first Legal Design Sprint on the Future of Dispute Resolution. And today she's very excited to help this Sprint, the first of its kind in construction contracts.
